Editorial

Dear Readers,

The year 2016-17 has been a very eventful year for our college. Having completed 25 years of its academic journey, SPB English Medium College of Commerce celebrates its Silver Jubilee this year. We are indeed happy to bring forward the twelfth issue of the college magazine which will hence forth be published under the title SPBians' Index. The magazine provides a platform for showcasing the talent and creativity of our students in diverse areas of academics, sports, cultural and social, research and extension activities. It also highlights the annual engagements of the college and provides a bird's eye view of activities and achievements of the college during the academic year.

This year has indeed been memorable with our college being recognized by The University Grants Commission as College with Potential for Excellence – 2016-2021. SPBians' Index attempts to give you a glimpse of the potential growth and development of the institute. To commemorate 25 glorious years of its existence, our college came up with the Silver Jubilee Souvenir this year. The magazine houses reports by the various committees of the college along with the report on the Silver Jubilee Souvenir Release Function which throw light on the overall development and progress of the college and its academic journey so far.

SPBians' Index provides an opportunity for both the teacher and the taught to explore their potential as creative writers. The magazine committee applauds the wholehearted efforts put in by all contributors who have willingly shared their knowledge and experiences which has made this issue of the magazine possible.

I express my gratitude towards our Principal Dr. Vipin D. Naik for his constant support and guidance. His enthusiasm and encouragement has been a highly motivating factor in the publication of the magazine issue.

I whole heartedly thank the editorial team for their sincere efforts, commendable inputs and generous contribution of time in bringing forth this issue.

Thank you one and all.

From the Principal's Desk

With hearty appreciation and compliments to our dear students, students' council and teaching and administrative staff for their efforts in making this academic year a fruitful and enjoyable one and with a sense of delight and reasonable satisfaction, I forward this twelfth issue of Index the college magazine. I am sure that the contents of the articles, reports of various committees and other information contained in the magazine will provide the readers ample reasons for my expression of sense of appreciation, delight and satisfaction because living up to our mission-maxim "S-P-B" i. e. " Study - Perform - Blossom", throughout the year students and staff have studied and performed well in curricular, co-curricular and extra-curricular activities. Some highlights of such 'studies' and 'performances' are given in following paragraphs.

On academic front one student bagged LATE RATI AND LATE NAOSHIRWAN KARANJIA GOLD MEDAL For securing highest average Grade Point in ACCONTANCY amongst the Lady Candidates at the B.Com.5th & 6th Semester Examination April-2016. Our College student bagged Outstanding Performance Award in National Accounting Talent Search for the year.

As usual, during this year too, a number of our students have performed creditably in sports, more than hundred students participated in various sports events and as many as thirteen students of the college have represented Veer Narmad South Gujarat University, Surat to play at various Inter University Tournaments. One student has been selected for Ranji Trophy and six students represented national games and three students have been selected for West Zone Tournaments. College also bagged four gold medals, three silver medal and six bronze medals in various inter university and Khel Maha Kumbh tournaments. College bagged one runners up position and one third position in Sarvajanik Cup organised by Sarvajanik Education Society.

So far as cultural activities are concerned students participated in various inter college competitions and bagged more than fifteen prizes including first prize in State level singing competition. Around fifty students participated in eight events in youth festival of VNSGU and won six prizes / awards in these competitions.

Students also participated and bagged more than twenty prizes in debate, elocution, power point presentation, quiz and essay competitions including second prize at Surat level public speaking contest.

It is very heartening to note that more than 410 students of our college are pursuing, along with the B. Com. degree course, professional courses like CA, CS, ICWA, etc,. Not only that, many students of the college are also pursuing vocational courses related to computer and I.T., Fashion Designing, Gems & Jewelry Designing, etc. This year more than 100 students of T.Y. B.Com have appeared in qualifying examinations like CAT, XAT, MAT, etc., for admission to management courses after their graduation, being offered by the institute of national and international repute like IIM, XLRI, SYMBIOSIS, NMIMS, NIRMA, etc., Many of them are also planning to pursuing their higher studies in Foreign Universities. College faculty has been granted major research project from UGC. All the members of our staff have been taking part in State/National/Inter National level seminars, conferences and workshops, presenting and publishing research papers and are showing appreciable consciousness about their professional development. Faculty members attended various academic events and presented sixteen papers in national and international conferences and published twenty seven papers in academic journals.

I am sure that above highlights, along with the relevant details in the magazine, will convince the readers about the talent our college possesses and the efforts our staff put in to groom and nourish the talent. I am also sure that the contents of the magazine will also convince the readers that all the SPBians are well and truly on course of evolution in their career and character as envisioned by the college.

On behalf of whole SPB-family, I take this opportunity to express our hearty good wishes to our T.Y. B. Com. and M. Com.- II students who are about to take off in search of new "Blossoms" in their chosen career and evolution in their professional, social and personal life. May they be blessed by his choicest blessings.

I also take this opportunity to express a deep sense of gratitude towards the officer bearers of our management, Sarvajanik Education Society, for their continuous support and encouragement in our endeavors.

Once again my most sincere compliments and good wishes to all the SPBians for their individual as well as collective efforts and achievements during the year. Herewith, I also express my full confidence in them that they will continue to follow the S-P-B motto for envisioned evolution in career and character of all the SPBians.

Self-Esteem: An ornament of person's character

Dr. Vipin D. Naik,
Principal

Self-Esteem, Self Concept and Superiority-Complex:

The term self-esteem is often used indiscriminately as a substitute for similar terms such as self-image or self-concept, self-confidence, self-respect etc. In particular, in spite of the fact that the terms self-esteem and self-concept represent different but related notions or constructs, they are often used interchangeably. Self-concept refers to a person's perceptions of competence or strength or weakness or adequacy or abilities etc. in certain domains such as social, sports and athletics, behavioral domains etc. Thus, the term self-concept of a person is nothing but a profile of self-perceptions about his competence or strength or weakness or adequacy or abilities etc. across the domains, whereas, the term Self-esteem of a person is his own overall evaluation of himself, including feelings of general happiness and satisfaction. A person's perceptions about his competence or strength or weakness or adequacy or abilities etc. in some domains could be high and it could be low in some other domains but his own overall evaluation of himself, including his feelings of general happiness and satisfaction could still be high or low. Thus, it is important to understand the primary meaning or the connotations the term self-esteem carries.

As a verb, to esteem means, to think favorably about or think positively about or to have regards for, and as a noun it means good thinking or feeling, favorable thinking or feeling, positive thinking or feeling, regards etc. Therefore, self-esteem means good or favorable or positive thinking/feelings for self or having regards for self. In other words, Self-Esteem is the term used to describe a person's own measurement of his/her self-worth or standings. It is how he thinks/feels of himself on the basis of his collection of beliefs or perceptions or concepts pertaining to his abilities and worthiness. But, it must be very carefully noted that strong/high self-esteem is not superiority-complex, because in psychology, 'complex' means repressed feelings or thoughts which cause abnormal behavior or mental state. Self-esteem refers to the extent to which a person likes, accepts or approves of him or how much he values himself.

A person with strong/high self-esteem neither has superiority-complex nor has inferiority-complex. He is neither self-boasting nor self-effacing. Self-Boasting is considered to be inferior human quality or a quality not worthy of having regards for and it reflects the signs of superiority-complex. Similarly, self-effacing is considered as sign of inferiority-complex. A person with strong/high self-esteem always has high/positive concept for himself on majority of domains, but he never shows it off! On the other hand a person who has weak/low self-esteem is at some times self-boasting and at some other times self-effacing. At some times he suffers from over confidence and at some other times suffers from diffidence. At some times he suffers from superiority-complex and at some other times suffers from inferiority-complex. Thus, in these regards, a person with strong/high self-esteem is considered to be a balanced person.

Some characteristics of persons having strong/high Self-Esteem:

Person having strong sense of self-esteem have some vital characteristics. When we see these characteristics in ourselves and in our actions then that also help in elevating our own self-esteem. Therefore they are worth taking note of. According to renowned psychologist Renee Smith some of such characteristics are as follows:

1. They appreciate themselves and other people.
2. They enjoy growing as a person and strive for finding ealized and meaning in their lives.
3. They are able to dig deep within themselves and be creative.
4. They make their own decisions and conform to, and do, what others tell them only when they agree.
5. They see the world in realistic terms, accepting other people the way they are, while pushing themselves to change in a more positive and confident direction.
6. They can easily concentrate on solving the problems in their lives.
7. Their relationships are loving and respectful.
8. They have thought about what their values are, identify them, and live according to these values every day.
9. They speak up, calmly and kindly telling others their opinions and what their own wants and needs are.
10. They ealized to make a constructive difference in other people's lives.

Common reasons for low self-esteem among the people of different age-groups and culture:

Major causes for low self-esteem among the people of different age groups are related to familial environment or social environment or peer-group environment or work-place environment etc. Present day familial environment, social environment, peer-group environment, or work-place environment in almost all countries are hardly conducive for people to think well of themselves. And in most of the cases of low self-esteem they seem to start thinking ill of themselves earlier and earlier in life.

With the rising cases of couples getting divorced or separated, their children may feel deserted and unwanted, or feel that it was somehow due to their own shortcomings that their parents have separated. Even when families do stay together, today's working mothers and fathers are often short of time to spend with their children. In such cases the children may wonder if the lack of attention they perceive is due to some flaws in them.

When children become teens, the prevailing social climate of permissiveness may distract them into situations which end up doing damage to their self-image. They are exposed to various addictions which, sooner or later, make them despise themselves for being unable to control their own behaviour. When they enter into easily disposable romantic relationships, and the inevitable disappointments involved in such cases, may cause them to feel rejected again and again.

When the youths enter the employment market, many find that the only jobs they can get fail to measure up to their education or intelligence, which makes them question their own intrinsic value. Full-fledged adults in the workplace are also prone to self-depreciation.In recent years, multitudes of workers have been bumped out of jobs by corporate downsizing, and other effects of advancing technology and economic globalisation. The men and women displaced in such situations or circumstances are prone to the feeling that there must be something wrong with them if others have kept their jobs while they have failed to 'make the cut.'

Identity associated with one's occupation is an important source of self-esteem, and it gets sunk among displaced workers or early retirees who suddenly find themselves cast in the ignominious role of 'has-beens' and an increasing number of seniors feel that they have lost their usefulness.

Another cause of increasing number of people suffering from low self-esteem is the decline in religious faith which has thrown individuals on their own responsibility. When God's will is left out of the equation, it is clearly our own fault if we do not live up to our potential or to what we or our parents have deemed our potential to be.

In the modern world where life is a contest and a person who is not among the winners is looked upon as lacking character, diligence, intelligence, or attractiveness, clearly people who see themselves as losers, or who think that other people see them as such, cannot be expected to glow with self-esteem.

Children, whose parents always tell them about what they do wrong, and never about what they do right, cannot be expected to respond effectively to the apparent flattery employed in some programs, intended to boost self-esteem courses such as, cake-and-ice cream celebrations for 'kids of the week,' and 'extraordinary kids, congratulatory scrolls and printed T-shirts presentation to pupils who actually had done nothing special. In fact some critics of such programs consider that this type of hype does not help in building up self-esteem so much as it puff-up egos. It might even prove psychologically dangerous to the 'super kids' later in life when the realities of the world cut them down to size. However, youngsters are usually saved from this because they usually have sharp noses for the contradictions between rhetoric and reality in such cases and, between what they hear in school and what they experience in their homes etc.

Steps we should take for elevating our self-esteem:

In order to attain the ornamental attributes of persons with high self-esteem such as mentioned earlier, we should take steps such as mentioned below.

1. We should continuously and honestly evaluate our self-concept on all the important domains of our life.
2. We should learn to appreciate ourselves and the other people.
3. We should continuously and honestly strive for finding fulfilment and meaning in our lives.
4. We should learn to make decisions for ourselves, and make honest efforts to conform to such decisions. We should learn to conform to all the good things notice in others.
5. We should be very clear about our values and the values we want to have and should try our best to live our life according to these values.

Employability Of Graduate

Shri Chandrakant S. Jariwala
Vice Chairman (First),
Sarvajanik Education Society

One of India's competitive advantages is its demographic dividend. Demographic dividend occurs when the proportion of working people in the total population is high because this indicates that more people have the potential to be productive and contribute to the growth of economy.

One of the critical factors in achieving the economic growth to occur is "Employability" that is looking at how we can make a growing young demography more employable. The younger population must have access to quality education, adequate nutrition and health.

Employability of graduates more particularly "Commerce Graduates" needs to be critically studied. A commerce graduate who may be B.Com or BBA has option to go for further study either by way of post graduation or joining professional courses like CA, ICWA, CS and other finance related approved courses and so many others. The curriculum as well as practical training of such professional courses are such that the student who passes such courses either becomes self–employed or employed in any industry or service sector to his highest satisfaction. But what about those who are not opting for further courses?

It has been very well noticed by the Industry and Service sector that students with graduate degree in commerce do not perform well in their employment. The employability scenario of university graduates is certainly an area of concern. It is observed that they do not make themselves deserving of jobs because of lack of appropriate proficiency of English language needed and also they fall weak in the theoretical and conceptual knowledge of their domain. There are various reasons attributing to poor employability like poor quality of teaching, education, underqualified faculty, university curriculum, lack of basic skills and work experience which includes practical experience.

Educational Institutions/University have to collaborate with the Government/UGC as well as Industry to develop course curricula with specific needs to address the requirement of trade, industry or service sectors. Vocational courses in such aspects may also help a great deals. It should be rather mandatory to attend special course like short duration practical training for Taxation/audit in a professional firm or any affiliated corporate body for better exposure of the students which inter alia includes special work-shop for all kind of courses pertaining to individual development. All these are required even if they have to follow a university dedicated broad curriculum. All these will definitely add value for both students and employers.

The highly qualified and dedicated faculties who are frequently updated and have re-trained themselves are the need for every institution to impart practical knowledge to students and give them opportunities to test their problem solving skills. These faculty members need to be encouraged to take refresher courses, study break and participate in industry events to keep abreast of the latest trend in the world of business.

The degree allows individuals to acquire a vast amount of knowledge and gain key skills in a relatively short period of time. However, it is imperative for students to understand and realize the structural gap in the system and also their deficiencies. Students need to understand importance of structural assessment and appropriate guidance to move in the right career path.

A student aware of his or her strength and areas of improvement can work in the right direction to enhance his employability quotient. After students identify their weaknesses and shortcomings, they can turn to various low cost, paid or free resources that can help them become employable.

- Let me define a leader. He must have vision and passion and not be afraid of any problem. Instead, he should know how to defeat it. Most importantly, he must work with integrity.

Competition Stress Competition Stress and its Management

Dr. Ashok K. Saha
Faculty in Physical Education

Introduction

Stress is a part of day-to-day living. It is a common human development and part of life. As college students you may experience stress meeting academic demands, adjusting to a new living environment, or developing friendships. The stress you experience is not necessarily harmful. Mild forms of stress can act as a motivator and energizer. However, if your stress level is too high, medical and social problems can result.

Stress is your body's way of responding to any kind of demand. It can be caused by both good and bad experiences. Stress is a feeling that is created when we react to particular events. Many hockey players sometimes get stressed when they play against a tough opponent. They get nervous on knowing with whom they are playing and they get so worked up that they lose focus on playing their game. In the end, they make mistakes and end up beating themselves up if they do not win. As a result, here is a list of techniques that a hockey player can use to help manage the stress of playing against the competition. The first step is to learn as much as you can on your opponent.

Although this may seem obvious some players may think they already know what they need to know. Remember there is always something to learn about your competition. Try to figure out an angle on how you can beat your competition. The more you know about your competition the better your chances are you will win the game. This will also help to reduce your worries about whom and what you will be facing in your next game. Do not assume anything about your competition whether they are stronger or weaker than you. Every player has his good and bad games and just because you may be facing a stronger opponent does not mean that you will lose.

Remember that before you start playing, you and your opponent both have an equal chance of winning. Focus on how you can best strive for perfection in your own game instead of worrying about your opponent. For instance, let's say you are playing the number player in the tournament and you are nervous. Instead of focusing on how good your competition is, focus on how you can play your best game. Concentrate on how you can better play the game or how you can best improve on your problem areas. Focusing on your game will definitely help you when you are nervous in playing a stronger player. Realize that you cannot win all of your games and that also includes your competition. You may be the best player in the world; however you will still lose eventually. No one player can win all of their games. Yes, they may have some winning streaks or win ninety percent of their games, but they will still lose some games. When facing a tough competitor, use this fact to your advantage. Even the best players will make some mistakes and lose.

The first step in any stress-reduction plan is discovering exactly how and why you get stressed, and learning to recognize when the stress of a situation is more perceived than real. When you feel overwhelmed by your stress, you need to use stress reduction techniques like meditation or yoga to help you relax. The next step is learning how to use exercise and food choices to combat stress. If you work to change these factors – your exercise habits, your diet and your mind-set about challenges and fears – you'll be sitting the stage for a calmer, happier you, no matter what stressful situations life throws at you. It is not uncommon to get nervous when you play a better opponent. The key is not to psyche yourself out just because the competition gets tough. Remember that some games will be easy to play and some games will be more difficult. All you can do is to focus on your game and play the best you can. This will help you in the long run and will help you to stop worrying whether you will win or lose.

What causes these stresses? Injuries and worries over performances and competition outcomes are the most directly correlated causes. It's safe to assume that most athletes have experienced some type of injury or feeling of pressure at performing up to par at one point in his or her career, especially hockey players who are constantly exposed to the dangers of a contract sport and working as a team to achieve a common goal. Whether players are worried about new injuries or rehashing previous injuries, not performing up to expected performances or letting teammates down, many players can become painfully troubled and tormented at the thought to where sports anxiety and stress occurs. Interestingly enough, the more a player worries about such issues, the more likely he or she is to fall prey to one.

Healthy ways to relax:

- Exercise regularly: Physical activity plays a key role in reducing and preventing the effects of stress. Make time for at least 30 minutes of exercise, three times per week. Nothing beats. Nothing beats aerobic exercise for releasing pent-up stress and tension.
- Eat a healthy diet: Well –nourished bodies are better prepared to cope with stress so be mindful of what you eat. Start your day right with breakfast, and keep your energy up and your mind clear with balanced, nutritious meals throughout the day.
- Avoid alcohol, cigarettes, and drugs: Self-meditating with alcohol or drugs may provide an easy escape from stress, but the relief is only temporary. Don't avoid or mask the issue at hand; deal with problems head on and with a clear mind.

- Get enough sleep: Adequate sleep fuels your mind, as well as your body. Feeling tired will increase your stress because it may cause you to think I set aside relaxation in your daily schedule. Don't allow other obligations to encroach. This is your time to take a break from all responsibilities and recharge your batteries.
- Connect with others: Spend time with positive people who enhance your life. A strong support system will buffer you from the negative effects of stress.
- Keep your sense of humor: This includes the ability to laugh at yourself. The act of laughing helps your body fight stress in a number of ways.
- Learning healthier ways to manage stress:
- If your methods of coping with stress aren't contributing to your greater emotional and physical health, it's time to find healthier ones. There are many healthy ways to manage and cope with stress, but they all require change. You can either change the situation or change your reaction. When deciding which option to choose, it's helpful to think of the four as: avoid, adapt, or accept.
- Since everyone has a unique response to stress, there is no "one size fits all" solution to managing it. No single method works for everyone or in every situation, so experiment with different techniques and strategies. Focus on what makes you feel calm and in control.

A Brief Note about 'College with Potential for Excellence'

CPE Award by UGC

The College is awarded with status of 'College with Potential for Excellence' (CPE) by University Grants Commission for the duration of five years starting from the year 2016 to 2021 and a grant of Rs. 1 crore is sanctioned. This is a recognition of College's outstanding achievements in academic, co-curricular , sports, cultural, extension and research activities The grant shall enable the College to further strengthen physical, human and research infrastructure to achieve the potential for excellence. The following paragraphs give a brief detail of the same.

Background of Scheme of 'The College with Potential for Excellence' by UGC

University Grants Commission (UGC) introduced a Scheme called "Universities with Potential for Excellence" (CPE) to encourage selected universities to reach world-class standards in their chosen domain(s) by providing additional funds to them under the Scheme.

It was realized that apart from universities, there were also a number of colleges in the country where teaching and research were of high quality. These colleges have achieved good standards in teaching and research by harnessing human and physical resources in innovative ways. Many of these colleges have potential for academic excellence. Recognizing the need to pay special attention to such colleges, the UGC introduced a Scheme for colleges, corresponding to the one for the universities, known as "Colleges with Potential for Excellence" (CPE).

The Scheme identifies colleges which have attained high standards in academic, sports, cultural research and extension activities and hold promise of excellence. A college selected under the CPE Scheme is provided additional funds to improve and strengthen its infrastructure that would help it in attaining further higher academic standards.

Excellence with Reference to CPE

Excellence refers to a state of exceptional or outstanding achievement in one's field of activity. Excellence of an academic institution involves reaching outstanding levels of performance in teaching, sports , cultural, research and related academic pursuits and attaining peerless position in the areas offered for study and research. Excellence is achieved in stages through a process of continuous improvement in content and quality of the pursuits. A dedicated academic community and adequate infrastructural facilities are essential ingredients of excellence. UGC realized that institutions with such potential need to be recognized and nurtured for the realization of their full potential.

The Selection Procedure by UGC

For the awarding of CPE status, the College has undergone the following stringent steps for evaluation before being selected :

- ★ The VNSGU invited application from Colleges of VNSGU to apply under the scheme.
- ★ Our College was shortlisted by VNSGU and application forwarded to UGC for further procedure
- ★ The standing Committee of UGC of 9 members, consisting of UGC Chairman Representative, a Vice Chancellor, 5 experts and UGC officer scrutinized all the proposal received by various Colleges and prepared a state wise list of applicant colleges as per their ranks based on score as per the criteria developed by standing committee.
- ★ The colleges short listed by standing committee were called for Inter-face meeting with UGC Expert Committee. The Committee examined in-depth the proposal of the college in a detailed discussion on it with Principal Dr. V. D. Naik and Dr. H. S. Oza. In addition to other things, the Committee was to verify the strengths of the college.
- ★ The recommendations of the Expert Committee were finalized by the Standing Committee and submitted for approval of the Commission.
- ★ The Commission awarded CPE status to the College with a grant of □ 1 crore.

CPE Grant Approved by UGC

- ? The grant consists of 60 lakhs non-recurring grant and Rs. 40 lakhs recurring grant. The non recurring grant shall be utilized for strengthening physical and human infrastructure by investments in language lab, teaching aids, library automation, computers, books and journals, internet connectivity, up-gradation of seminar hall and skill development programs.
- ? The recurring grant of 40 lakhs is meant for recurring expenditure on softwares, skill development, internet connectivity, teachers' skill development and sports activities.

Expected outcomes of the Scheme

The college is expected to achieve the following objectives:

- ★ To strengthen the academic and physical infrastructure for achieving excellence in teaching, research and outreach programmes
- ★ To enhance the quality of learning and teaching process
- ★ To promote academic programmes relevant to the socio-economic needs of the nation in general and the region in particular.
- ★ To improve undergraduate education in colleges by interfacing of the postgraduate programmes.
- ★ To promote networking with university departments, research centres throughout the country.
- ★ To promote skill oriented programmes.

To conclude, we are looking forward to strengthen our infrastructure further and thereby attain our potential for excellence.

He stated that correlation quantifies the strength of the linear relationship between a pair of variables, whereas regression expresses the relationship in the form of an equation.

He then highlighted the on the concept of correlation and regression. He explained that correlation is a measure of association between two variables. The two most popular correlation coefficients are: Spearman's correlation coefficient rho and Pearson's product-moment correlation coefficient. When calculating a correlation coefficient for ordinal data, select Spearman's technique. For interval or ratio-type data, use Pearson's technique. Regression goes beyond correlation by adding prediction capabilities.

Report of Planning Forum Committee

The committee planned and arranged lectures on different topics by experts in different areas to provide guidance to the student of the college. Following Lectures were arranged during the year 2016-17.

On 8 November 2016, the Government of India announced the demonetisation of all 500 (US$7.40) and 1,000 (US$15) bank notes of the Mahatma Gandhi Series. The government claimed that the action would curtail the shadow economy and crack down on the use of illicit and counterfeit cash to fund illegal activity and terrorism. The sudden nature of the announcement—and the prolonged cash shortages created significant disruption throughout the economy, threatening economic output. The move was heavily criticised as poorly planned and unfair, and was met with protests, litigation, and strikes.An expert lecture was conducted on the topic "Demonitisation"on 17th January 2017 by Dr.Akash Acharya, Centre for Social Studies; Surat and he discussed what is the impact of the current demonetisation on the people and economy and its various economic impact?

Cyber crime encompasses any criminal act dealing with computers and networks 'Cybercrime' is simply a crime that has some kind of computer or cyber aspect to it. Mr Vikrant Jariwala an advocate and an aluminus of our college gave insight into what cybercrime exactly is on 23rd January 2017. To go into more detail, he put together some interesting and often alarming facts, to make it a little easier to digest.

Library Committee Report

In the silver jubilee year the library is wishing all its users best Wishes for great enlightenment with the education

Every year it is a religious practice to make annual reports about the new approach if any in the library. The strength of the library is not simply its collection but more importantly its users. The employment initiatives by the government and the employment drives by the nationalized banks have inculcated a great spirit of competitiveness in the present day users of the library. Their interest to borrow books beyond their subjects of the curriculum has strengthened the collections by procuring books on competitive Examinations and Entrance tests.

There was a herculean task of withdrawing books in the library has started in this academic year. The library committee has approved the withdrawal of books and magazines and journals too.

And Ms. Swati M Patel took the job as a library clerk in good spirit and became popular amomg the library users both students and faculty.

I conclude this with a simple message with the following saying "The secret of walking in water is knowing where the stones are there". Know thyself and the surroundings leap us towards the success in life. He, who does not hope to win, has already lost.

So, believe in yourself, work hard and you will emerge as winner.
